

Hi Russell,

I just wanted to thank you for the great job you did handling a very rough divorce for myself and my daughter, after a two year legal battle with my ex. He left the country two days prior to our final court date with my daughter. You forced me to proceed with the hearing. I treated you terribly for that and eleven years later, the result from that action is really going to help us out. So, thanks Russell! You were right in forcing me to suck it up and wrap up the case despite the circumstances. Justice will prevail due to your diligence and leadership.

*This e-mail was sent to Russell in June 2010 from a divorce client he represented in a two year long hotly contested custody/divorce battle - from 1996 through 1999. The former client called Russell some 11 years later to both thank him again and alert him to the possibility of needing his legal expertise in a new case. Yet another former client who has again sought Russell's legal assistance many years after the successful completion of their initial legal relationship.
